

Company Handbook

Working Hours

Our core working hours are 10am to 4pm local time, Monday through Friday. Outside of core hours, employees are free to structure their day as they see fit, as long as deliverables are met and core-hour meetings are attended. Remote work is fully supported; there is no requirement to be in an office on any particular day. Teams that prefer more structure can agree on their own overlap hours, but the company-wide baseline is the 10am-4pm core window.

Remote Work Policy

Employees may work from home, a coworking space, or any other location with a stable internet connection, on a fully permanent basis if they choose. There is no minimum number of in-office days required. Employees who live within commuting distance of a company office are welcome to use it any time it's open, but attendance is never tracked and never factors into performance reviews. Remote employees are expected to be reachable during their team's agreed overlap hours and to keep their calendar accurate so teammates in other time zones can schedule meetings without back-and-forth. The company covers a one-time home office setup stipend (see Equipment Policy) and a monthly stipend toward internet and coworking costs for fully remote employees, processed automatically through payroll each month.

Vacation Policy

Full-time employees accrue 20 days of paid vacation per year, prorated for partial years of employment. Vacation requests should be submitted through the HR portal at least two weeks in advance for anything longer than three consecutive days. Unused vacation days roll over up to a maximum of 5 days into the following calendar year; anything beyond that is forfeited. Vacation accrual continues during approved leave of any kind, and there is no cap on how many vacation days can be taken consecutively, subject to manager approval and adequate team coverage during the absence.

Sick Leave

Employees receive 10 paid sick days per year, separate from vacation allowance and not requiring advance notice. For absences longer than three consecutive sick days, a note from a healthcare provider may be requested by HR. Sick days do not roll over between calendar years and are not paid out upon departure. Employees who are feeling unwell are strongly encouraged to stay home and work remotely if able, or take the day fully off, rather than coming into an office space.

Expense Reimbursement

Business-related expenses (travel, client meals, conference tickets, and necessary equipment) are reimbursable with a submitted receipt. Reimbursement requests must be filed within 60 days of the expense being incurred, through the finance team's expense portal. Expenses over $500 require manager pre-approval before the purchase is made, not after. Reimbursements are typically processed within 10 business days of a correctly submitted request, and paid out in the next regular payroll cycle.

Travel Policy

Business travel should be booked at least two weeks in advance through the company's approved travel portal whenever possible, to take advantage of negotiated corporate rates. Economy class is standard for flights under six hours; flights longer than six hours may be booked in premium economy. Ground transportation, reasonable meals, and standard baggage fees are reimbursable under the Expense Reimbursement policy above. Employees traveling internationally for business should notify IT in advance so a travel-mode security profile can be enabled on company devices.

Equipment Policy

New employees receive a laptop, monitor, and any reasonable peripherals needed to do their job, selected from the standard equipment catalog. Equipment is company property and must be returned upon departure. Requests for non-standard equipment (e.g., a second monitor, specialized software licenses) go through the employee's manager for approval. Fully remote employees also receive a one-time $500 home office setup stipend, usable for a desk, chair, monitor arm, or similar, reimbursed through the standard expense process within the first 90 days of employment.

IT and Security Policy

All company devices must have full-disk encryption and the standard endpoint security agent installed before being used for company work. Multi-factor authentication is required on all accounts that support it, without exception. Company data should never be stored on personal, unmanaged devices. Suspected phishing emails or security incidents should be reported immediately to the security team's dedicated channel rather than investigated personally. Lost or stolen devices must be reported within 24 hours so they can be remotely wiped.

Confidentiality and Intellectual Property

Employees may have access to confidential company, client, or partner information in the course of their work, and are expected to protect it both during and after their employment. Work product created during employment using company resources or time belongs to the company, consistent with the employment agreement signed at hiring. Employees are free to discuss their own general skills and experience publicly, but should not share proprietary code, internal metrics, or unreleased product details outside the company without explicit approval.

Code of Conduct

All employees are expected to treat colleagues, clients, and partners with respect and professionalism. Harassment, discrimination, and retaliation of any kind are not tolerated and should be reported to HR immediately. Concerns can be raised confidentially, and retaliation against anyone who raises a concern in good faith is itself a violation of this policy. Reports can be made directly to HR, to any manager, or through the anonymous ethics hotline listed on the internal HR portal.

Diversity and Inclusion

The company is committed to building a workplace where people of all backgrounds can do their best work. Hiring, promotion, and compensation decisions are made based on skills, experience, and performance, and are periodically audited for consistency across demographic groups. Employee resource groups are open to anyone interested and receive a small annual budget for events, coordinated through HR.

Workplace Safety

Any workplace injury, no matter how minor, should be reported to HR within 24 hours using the incident report form on the HR portal. Employees working from a company office are expected to familiarize themselves with the building's emergency exits and assembly point, covered during new-hire orientation. Ergonomic equipment assessments are available on request for both office-based and remote employees.

Performance Reviews

Performance reviews happen twice a year, in June and December. Reviews combine self-assessment, manager feedback, and peer feedback from two to three colleagues chosen by the employee. Compensation changes, when they happen, are typically communicated within two weeks of the review cycle's completion. New employees receive an additional informal check-in at the 90-day mark, separate from the standard cycle, to surface any early onboarding issues.

Compensation and Bonuses

Salaries are reviewed annually as part of the December performance review cycle, though off-cycle adjustments can happen for significant role changes. Eligible employees may receive an annual performance bonus, targeted as a percentage of base salary and dependent on both individual and company performance; specific targets are communicated during onboarding and any subsequent role change. Referral bonuses are paid out for successful hires referred by current employees, 90 days after the new hire's start date.

Professional Development

Each employee has an annual professional development budget for courses, books, conferences, or certifications relevant to their role, usable at their own discretion without requiring a specific business justification beyond general relevance. Unused budget does not roll over to the following year. Employees attending external conferences on company time should share a brief summary of key takeaways with their team afterward.

Company Holidays

The company observes 10 paid public holidays per year, published on the HR portal at the start of each calendar year and varying slightly by country of employment to reflect local public holidays. Employees in regions where a locally observed holiday isn't on the standard company list may swap it for one of their vacation days with manager approval.

Meeting Culture

Meetings should have a written agenda shared in advance and a clear owner responsible for keeping them on time. Any meeting that could be replaced by a written update should be. Recurring meetings are reviewed quarterly by their owner to confirm they still need to exist. Recording meetings is allowed with the consent of all attendees, primarily to let colleagues in other time zones catch up asynchronously rather than requiring live attendance.

Internal Communication Channels

Time-sensitive questions should go through the team chat rather than email, which is reserved for external communication and formal records. Each team maintains a public channel for updates that anyone in the company can follow. Company-wide announcements are posted to the general announcements channel and are also summarized in a weekly digest email sent every Friday.

Offboarding Process

Departing employees should coordinate a knowledge-transfer plan with their manager covering their last two weeks of employment. All company equipment must be returned within 5 business days of the last day of employment, using the prepaid shipping label provided by IT. Final pay, including any unused vacation payout, is processed in the next regular payroll cycle following departure, consistent with local employment law.
